

JAMES KOSKINAS

ABOUT JAMES KOSKINAS

James Koskinas, born in Terre Haute, Indiana, is a painter, writer, actor and co-creator of the film, “The Twilight Angel,” as well as a play, “Even if the Mountains Burn.” Currently, James lives, paints and writes in Santa Fe, New Mexico with his wife, the painter Julie Schumer.

A chance meeting with a lost stallion on an Arizona highway set in motion my lifetime obsession with painting horses. Later I added a rider to these horses. The riders have become self-portraits and a search for unity between horse and man.

I am fascinated with the shape of the horse, especially the head. I change the shape of the head, sometimes lengthening it, sometimes shortening it. I like to paint them life size or almost life size. I can abstract it, elongate it, shorten it. Painting the horses on paper allows me to be more spontaneous and expressive and make them more abstract. I can always go back to the horse; he is always there for me.
